

The WAR MAPS in the NEW Edition of The CENTURY Dictionary & Cyclopedia & Atlas

enable one to trace instantly the movements of every important campaign on land or sea, the routes of invading armies, raids, etc., placing and dating on the maps the battles, sieges and blockades not only of ancient and medieval times, but also those of the year just ended—and this without any complexity in the maps themselves.

These War Maps form one of the very many valuable features to be found only in "The Century." When they are consulted in connection with the thousands of encyclopedic articles—telling authoritatively the stories of these same battles, the causes which precipitated them, and the life-histories of the heroes who fought in them—they afford a most complete understanding of the very subjects all English-speaking people are reading most about these days, in following the manœuvres in the Transvaal and the Philippines.

The Atlas Volume (Number X in the set) in which all the maps and geographical statistics have been gathered together for convenience in using, is a marvel of modern map making. Its maps are unlike those you've seen in other works—they're histories in themselves, of the whole world from its earliest ages; political, geographical, civil and military histories, and absolutely authoritative in every detail—of course, for they're part of "The Century" just as much as is the encyclopedic matter, or the word-facts.

How to Own the Work at HALF-PRICE

"The Million-Dollar Sale of 'The Century' at the Wanamaker Store has brought about a complete change in the selling of this greatest of all reference works. Hitherto a purchase only possible to people of means, it has been perfected, revised, brought down-to-date—the edition for 1900—and half the price left off, while the easy terms of payment explain how folks in every class have been able to own the much sought-after-work through the Wanamaker "Century" club. The Dollar entrance fee secures the prompt delivery, to each member, of one complete set of the massive volumes—and the Century Book Case—a specially designed cabinet of polished oak—desk-high—that makes the books doubly usable from its handiness. The purchase is completed—leisurely—by little monthly payments (10c a day only) and one has the use of the books from the very beginning.

These—just to show how down-to-date the Work is.
